1. FAA Seeking Artists for Projects in the Schools

The Fredericton Arts Alliance needs two visual artists for specific school projects. One will work with primary students at Park Street Elementary on Fredericton's North Side in a drawing project focused on beans. The other will help students at the Central New Brunswick Academy in New Bandon create a mural reflecting the school's commitment to music. Previous projects have resulted in a series of sculptured planters, murals in several schools, photography experiences, textile projects and more.

Both artists will work closely with teachers to complete the projects. The FAA will pay each artist an honorarium of $500. Material costs, as itemized in the schools' proposals, will be paid. If necessary, a modest travel honorarium may be included. These projects are two of four the FAA is financing this year, the third year in which the local arts advocacy group has paid for artists to spend significant time working in the schools. The FAA expects artists to spend about 25 hours working with students on the projects.

"We hope the projects give students an in depth arts experience that they would not otherwise enjoy, and we also hope this leaves the schools with a permanent work of art for other classes to enjoy well into the future," said Katie FitzRandolph, president of the Arts Alliance.

The Park Street School project will take off from the experience of growing beans in the classroom. The class will grow a variety of different beans, and sketch their development from dry seed to pole-supported transplants in the school garden. Students will record the development in writing and drawing. The selected artist will teach students how to draw from direct observation of the various stages in the seed's development. In the fall, they plan to harvest their crop and share the results with the community.

This project is planned to start in late February, with the artist working in seven different classrooms for half-hour periods teaching drawing. The artist will also create a permanent piece of art based on the project for display in the school. The bean project touches on science, art and literacy for about 140 kindergarten and Grade 1 students.

The Central N.B. Academy project envisages working in acrylics with about 100 students in Grades 6 to 9. Students will work on one of two projects that link art and music. One group will work with the artist to create a mural next to the music room reflecting the school's love of music. They will discuss instrument families, composers, theory, music history and rhythm in the process of creating their design.

The other group will work either individually or in partnerships to create a painting that reflects their personal love of music – a favourite instrument, band, musician or genre. Many of these will be selected to hang permanently in the school. The selected artist will visit the school five times for about five hours each time: helping students plan the projects, outline the designs, and paint the mural and the individual works. Ideally the artist would be there from 8:30am to 1:30pm, working with two teachers on the project. The experience will let students glimpse the possibility of a career in art, with a discussion of the challenges and opportunities involved in such a choice.

Interested artists can get more information by emailing president@frederictonartsalliance.ca. Artists who would like to be considered should send, to the same address, a short résumé and indicate which project they would like to work on and how they feel they can contribute to it. The deadline for applying is January 22. Back to top.

4. Wintersleep with guests The Everywheres at the Fredericton Boyce Farmers' Market Jan 12

The Capital Complex & Shivering Songs in partnership with the Harvest Jazz & Blues Festival presents Wintersleep with guests The Everywheres at the Fredericton Boyce Farmers' Market on Thursday, January 12, 2017. Tickets are available at <https://goo.gl/QNvzQY>.

The JUNO Award-winning band have released five previous full-length records. They took a break after the release and touring of their 2012 album Hello Hum, and, during that time, wrote a wealth of new material in their Montreal studio. The band then carefully curated the 11 songs comprising The Great Detachment and returned to record to Halifax's Sonic Temple with producer Tony Doogan (Belle & Sebastian, Mogwai).

The Great Detachment was primarily recorded live-off-the-floor, adding an organic and transparent aural aesthetic to the collection. It is a rock album overwhelmed with musical warmth which harkens back to the era of Wintersleep's much-loved break-out song "Weighty Ghost". It's a call to their fans to assemble and sing along to a new raft of tunes borne from reflection and changing technologies. Wintersleep has been busy touring Canada and Europe in 2016 and making waves with their video for the debut single, "Amerika".

7. Nasty Shadows Theatre Company presents In On It Jan 12-14

Nasty Shadows Theatre Company presents In On It, a play by Daniel MacIvor from Jan 12-14 at Memorial Hall, on the UNB Campus.

In On It is Daniel MacIvor at his best. Woven through a rich tapestry of layered spectacle, In On It presents the story of two men and the drama of their lives. In On It is a hauntingly dark and beautiful masterpiece, spiced with moments of poignancy so rich they will linger in your imagination long after the play is done.

Produced by Nasty Shadows, a veteran company of some of Fredericton's most experienced amateur actors, In On It is one in a long line of Daniel MacIvor plays undertaken by the company. Known for their attention to intimacy and for shedding the artifices of big production, Daniel MacIvor's seemingly simplistic, yet deceptively complex and carefully crafted dramas, are a natural fit for the Shadows. You are invited to share in the company's love of that craft, and the depth, humour, and pleasures that are to be found in Daniel MacIvor's In On It.

8. Cinema Politica presents Red Square on a Blackboard Jan 13

Cinema Politica Fredericton returns with Red Square on a Blackboard on Friday, January 13 at Conserver House, located at 180 Saint John Street.

Red Square on a Blackboard takes us into the heart of the 2012 student crisis to experience from the inside one of the most important social movements in Quebec history. In cinema verité style, the camera stays with the members of the largest student organisation, the CLASSE, as the crisis unfolds.

We follow Maxime, Victoria, and Justin, as well as the two official spokespersons Gabriel and Jeanne through the dramatic ups and downs of the strike. We have privileged access behind the scenes to experience with them the intense public debate that raged for weeks during the so-called the Maple Leaf Spring (Printemps érable): executive committee meetings, media strategizing, press conferences, huge student assemblies, debates, votes, street demonstrations, negotiations, demands, as well as the exhaustion, discouragement... and doubts.

Everyone is welcome. Films are free but donations welcome. Conserver House is wheelchair accessible but the washrooms are up the stairs. To view the trailer, or for more information visit www.cinemapolitica.org or contact fredericton@cinemapolitica.org. Back to top.

15. Monday Night Film Series presents Last Cab to Darwin (Jan 16) & The Innocents (Jan 23)

Last Cab to Darwin

January 16, 2017, 7:30pm at Tilley Hall, UNB Campus

Director: Jeremy Sims

Australia, 2015

English

123 minutes

Principal Cast: Michael Caton, Ningali Lawford, Mark Coles Smith, Emma Hamilton, Jacki Weaver

Based on the successful stage play by Reg Cribb, Last Cab to Darwin tells the story of 70-year-old taxi driver Rex (Michael Caton), who is diagnosed with terminal stomach cancer. Rex leaves his loved ones behind, and sets out on a 3,000-mile journey to Darwin in a bid to die on his own terms. Along the way he discovers that before you end your life you've got to live it, and to live it you've got to learn to share it.

Along the way, he picks up the smooth-talking Tilly (aboriginal actor Mark Coles Smith), who is also headed north with dreams of starting a football career. Thus does the euthanasia movie meet the buddy/road movie, a pairing actually encountered once before in Goodbye Solo, although in that case it was the passenger wanting to end it. Rex claims to have no family, but he leaves behind a grumpy neighbour (Ningali Lawford-Wolf) who is clearly the love of his late life.

Gorgeous cinematography from Steve Arnold captures the otherworldly beauty of the Outback as Rex and Tilly bisect the continent. There are sunsets and vistas stunning enough to make a suicidal man think twice; not to mention a few signs, like the literal one at the side of the highway, declaring that all roads are open. But Sims isn't trying to preach here. Last Cab to Darwin is in fact based on the stories of two terminally ill men who sought the treatment; one of them ultimately went through with it and one did not. Both are long dead now, but the film makes the gentle suggestion that what matters more than how you choose to go is what you do in the meantime.

The Innocents

January 23, 2017, 7:30pm at Tilley Hall, UNB Campus

Director: Anne Fontaine

France, Poland, 2016

French, Polish, Russian

115 minutes

Principal Cast: Lou de Laâge, Agata Kulesza, Agata Buzek and Vincent Macaigne

Opening with peaceful, serene images set within a convent, director Anne Fontaine quickly establishes the illusion that will soon be broken in her new film The Innocents. A group of nuns sing in unison, before being interrupted by a harrowing scream. This cry in the dark later becomes a recurring motif, as the sobering drama recounts the traumatic experiences following a case of sexual violence in post-World War II Poland.

In December 1945, a young French Red Cross medical student, Mathilde Beaulieu (Lou de Laâge), is sent to Poland as part of a medical mission to find, treat and repatriate French survivors of the German camps. One day, a Polish nun arrives in the hospital. In very poor French, she begs Mathilde to come to her convent. Mathilde life and beliefs change when she discovers the advanced state of pregnancy that affects several of the Sisters of the convent just outside the hospital where she works.

Inspired by the exploits of Madeleine Pauliac, a Red Cross doctor who ministered to Polish rape victims while treating French patients at a post-war Warsaw hospital, this is a harrowing insight into the cruel realities of conflict that is bound to draw comparisons with Xavier Beauvois' Of Gods And Men and Pawel Pawlikowski's Ida, especially as Agata Kulesza, Joanna Kulig, and Dorota Kuduk appear in both films. But this also contains echoes of Max Färberböck's A Woman In Berlin and Wojciech Smarzowski's Rose, as it similarly explores the fate of women as Soviet forces turned liberation into a new form of oppression.

This year, 30 limited release, independent, foreign, and Canadian films will be shown. Admission is $7/film, but a yearly film society membership reduces admission cost to $4/film. The series is open to all. Memberships are available at Tilley 102 every Monday night. For further info, contact NB Film Co-op at 455-1632 or info@nbfilmcoop.com, or visit <http://nbfilmcoop.com/exhibition/monday-night-film-series>.
